

Jason Doctor, LAT, ATC

is a graduate of East Carolina University with degrees in Exercise Sports Science and Athletic Training. During his time as a clinical athletic trainer, he has worked in the secondary, college and industrial settings before transitioning into sales. Jason was a member of the Chesterfield County EMS training group for concussions and spine boarding. He was also a guest lecturer for EMS continuing education sessions on heat related illness treatment. Six years ago, Jason started his sales career with Performance Health as a Cramer Products rep before moving over to Medco. Jason is proud of the Cramer Mentorship program for new graduate AT's going into the profession that he established and implemented. Now with ESSITY, Jason is the hospital sales executive for Virginia.

With seven years experience serving as the VATA region representative, Jason has been part of making sure third-party reimbursement passed legislation. He has been a speaker at both the VATA and MAATA conferences and does casting workshops throughout the state.

Jason currently resides in Richmond, VA with his wife Kate (also an AT) and 3 children Madie, Graham, and Harris.
